One Hundred and Seventy Chinese Landed-The Mayor of Tacoma Explains His Presence in Seattle-The Action of the Militia in Firing Upon the Mob Generally Condemned.

As soon as the fact was generally known about town that the Queen of the Pacific had been sighted ten miles outside the Heads, a steady stream of spectators flowed down each of the streets leading to the wharf of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, and covered every lumber pile in the vicinity, besides covering all the wharves which would afford a sight of the landing of the Chinese that had been forced to board the steamer at Seattle. A large number of policemen were sprinkled about among the throng—not for the reason that any serious trouble was feared, but merely to discourage the hoodlum element if any disturbance was started. About an hour before the steamer could be seen from the wharf an officer appeared and forced every one not having busithe wharf to depart for the back ground. The order was reluctantly and grumblingly obeyed by many who had imagined rare sport in viewing the unloading of a cargo of reluctant Celestial visi-tors. As soon as the crowd had left, the Custom House officers appeared and made arrange ments for taking charge of the landing of the pas ments for taking charge of the landing of the passengers. When the steamer arrived near the end of the wharf, at 2:50 o'clock, and had lowered her lines, a glance toward the city disclosed the entire city front, as far as the eye could reach, black with people, who had congregated evidently with no hostile intentions, but merely to curiously watch the novel sight. As soon as the steamer was securely moored at the wharf, Inspector Grant took on an obstinate and unrelenting look, and planted himself at the head of the gangway, with two lesser lights guarding at the foot. In a firm two lesser lights guarding at the foot. In a firm and loud voice one of the satellites at the foot pro and fond voice one of the satellites at the foot pro-claimed that no newspaper man would be allowed on board until they were through with the boat, but it was noticed, however, that reporters were about the only applicants that were refused ad-

Aside from a very large number of cabin passenfers on board the steamer, there were 216 Chinamen in the steerage, 171 of them being those that were forced to leave Seattle. At precisely 3 o'clock the cabin passengers, after undergoing a search by the customs officers, were landed. During the departure of the whites, officers were busy constructing a corral near the forward gangway, which was intended to hold the Chinamen until their luggage had undergone official scrutiny. When the order was given the Chinamen were headed for the enclosure, which held 100. After a tedious ransacking which lasted half an hour, the gang was turned loose to be dealt with by a perfect mob of expressmen. They were loaded in the gang was turned loose to be dealt with by a perfect mob of expressmen. They were loaded in wagons promisenously and hurriedly driven up towards Chinatown, unmolested by the large assembly that thronged the thoroughfare leading to Pacific street. Not even a grown nor a hoot was heard as Seattle's exodus poured through the streets to swell the large army of idle and starving Chinamen already here.

swell the large army of idle and starving China-men already here.

Before the second batch was allowed to emerge from the corral, the excitement among them be-came intense, which was due to the speed with which their baggage was hustled about, coupled with their natural bewilderment occasioned by the exciting events they had passed through dur-ing the last few days and the vague notion of what they were going to do now that they were of Violence at Seattle.

After the last wagon containing China driven away, an ALTA reporter was allowed to board the steamer to search for information concerning the trouble at Seattle. Captain Alexander was found in his stateroom, and courteously consented to relate all that he knew of the trouble at Seattle.

"It was Sunday morning," said the Captain,
"I think at about 7 o'clock, that my first officer came to my room and said that he feared there was going to be trouble in town, as a large number of going to be trouble in town, as a large number of men were congregating in the streets and were engaged in landing Chinamen and their laggage on the dock. I was in bed at the time, but I immediately arose, dressed myself and appeared on deck. To my utter surprise and amazement, a large number of excited men were congregating in the streets. I started down towards the town, and on my way I was accosted by a body of men, who said: 'Captain, you have got to take every Chinaman in Seattle on board your steamer today. They must all go on your ship, every man of them.' I answered that certainly, every man who paid his passage could go, that is, providing he went with his own free will, but not otherwise. The ship was there, willing and ready to carry passengers, but I would stand no foolishness. Not one man should go aboard unless he was willing so long as I was alive. If anything of the kind was done it would have to be over my dead body. PREPARATIONS FOR DEFENCE.

was done it would have to be over my dead body.

PREPARATIONS FOR DEFENCE.

"If then went on up town, but before proceeding far I despatched orders to my first officer to have in readiness the hose and hot water, and to be prepared with those formidable factors to defend the ship. When I returned, the wharf was swarming with an excited populace. I received word that the Chinamen had to go on my ship, and that if they refused to pay their fare the citizens would furnish it for them. By this time it was approaching noon. I think the fares of nearly 100 had been paid, and they were put aboard the ship. I should judge there were 3,000 people in sight at this time, not as an angry mob, but as a lot of determined men who meant business. I occasionally saw the Sheriff moving about among the crowd, but nothing could be done at that time. Later on I was served with a writ of habeas corpus, demanding that I produce the Chinamen on board my ship in Court on the following morning, to show cause why they were being restrained of their liberty. All through Sunday night, during a pouring rain, a guard remained on the wharf, eagerly watching for the slightest motion which might betoken an effort on my part to leave the dock with the steamer. The Chinamen that were not on board were comfortably sheltered in the warehouse, and were fed in the morning. At 9 o'clock on Monday the Sheriff and myself appeared in Court with eighty-seven Chinamen. They were asked individually by the Court if they desired to leave by the Queen, and ont of the eighty-seven seventy-one professed a desire to go, but the others preferred to remain.

PREPARING FOR THE DEPARTURE.

PREPARING FOR THE DEPARTURE.

"The seventy-one Chinamen were returned to the ship, and before noon I had received one hun-dred more, I had now taken all that the steam-er's license would permit, and absolutely declined another one. The fare for each Chinaman was placed at $7 50, and the total sum for the passage of the entire body was paid me by Mr. McNaught, of the law firm of McNaught, Ferry, McNaught & Mitchell. The money, I feel certain, was raised amongst the best citizens of Seattle. I saw $500 subscribed in fifteen minutes' time. The hundred that took passage after the first seventy-one, were each asked through an interpreter if he was perfectly willing to go; upon his answering in the affirmative he was passed on board. But one relented, and he was quickly returned to the dock. I feel quite certain that at least seven eighths of the entire population of Seattle were in favor of the Chinamen leaving, provided they left of their own free will. If I could have accommodated every Chinaman in Seattle with room on board ship, there is no doubt in my mind but that the town would now be without a Chinaman. As it is, there are about one hundred left."

"What sort of men were engaged in this eviction?" seked the reporter.

"What sort of men were engaged in this eviction?" asked the reporter.
"Most of them were laboring men—not a dirty nor ragged class, but genuine, earnest laboring men, bent upon ridding the town of an unwholesome competition. I am sure that the better classes were in sympathy with the movement, but of course were opposed to enforcing any measure which might cause the town serious loss through suits for damages.

THE STEAMER LEAVING THE DOCK. THE STEAMER LEAVING THE DOCK.

"So long as I have remained in port everything was orderly and proper, but the Sheriff coincided with me in the belief that as soon as the steamer left there would be trouble. While tied at the dock they still believed that matters would be arranged for the steamer to receive them, and for this reason I remained longer than I otherwise would. But at about 11:20 on Monday forenoon we let loose and drifted down the stream, and as we left I could see the immense throng surging back up town, and in a short time after that I distinctly heard the reports of the musketry, and at once divined that the crowd had become enraged at the partial failure of their project, and were at the partial failure of their project, and were acting in such a manner that the militia were compelled to fire into them. This, of course, ends my knowledge of the trouble. The Chinamen were all very subdued on the trip down and made no trouble whatever."

THE SHOOTING CONDEMNED.

Mayor Weisbach of Tacoma Telis What He Knows of the Affair.

Among the passengers that arrived on the Queen of the Pacific yesterday was R. Jacob Weisbach, Mayor of Tacoma, and Manager of the Cascade Oil and Lumber Company. Mr. Weisbach was seen last evening at the Palace Hotel by an ALTA reporter. He said that it was not possible for him to speak of the riot as an eye witness, as he saw to speak of the riot as an eye witness, as he saw but little of it.

"It has been reported in the despatches, Mr. Weisbach," said the reporter, "that you came over from Tacoma to Seattle to lead in the eviction of the Chinese?"

"I know that such a report went abroad, but it is entirely untrue. I left Tacoma on Saturday evening for Seattle, accompanied by my wife, with no other purpose in mind than taking the Queen of the Pacific on the following morning for San Francisco. I arrived in Seattle about half-past 10 o'clock that evening, and went directly to the Arlington House. I was ignorant of any demonstration until the next morning, when I arose at 8 o'clock. While passing down the street, I met a stration until the next morning, when I arose at 8 o'clock. While passing down the street, I met a friend who told me that there was going to be trouble, that the Chinamen were even then being drummed out of their quarters and were being headed for the Queen of the Pacific, which was going to carry them all out of town. As I have always been foremest in anti-Chinese movements in my own town always of course. in my own town, always, of course,

ADVOCATING EAWFUL MEASURES,

I at once divined that my presence in Seattle would be misconstrued. I feared that many would think that I was there to encourage the lawless movement. I therefore hastily ordered my bagagge transferred from the hotel to the steamer, following it there with my wife as soon as possible. As I approached the dock I noticed a large body of men congregated there, evidently greatly excited. I met the Superintendent of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, who asked me if I was going aboard the Queen. Upon my replying that I was, he told me that ther was going to be serious trouble; that all the Chinese in Seattle were going to be forced on board the ADVOCATING BAWFUL MEASURES. my replying that I was, he told the that there was going to be serious trouble; that all the Chinese in Seattle were going to be forced on board the steamer. I took passage, however, and remained on the steamer. During the afternoon I met ten or fifteen of the Committee who had the eviction in hand, and they assured me that there would be no violence. In fact, they were positive that the matter could be arranged peaceably and without bloodshed. I also met on Monday morning Chief Justice Green, Governor Squires and Adjutant-General Smith, who stated to me that the only reason for directing the Chinamen to appear in Court was to place the city beyond the power of any disastrous lawsuits which might arise if the consent of the Chinamen for their departure was not first obtained. It was merely a proper measure for the city's protection.

DEPRECATING THE ACTION OF THE MILITIA.

DEPRECATING THE ACTION OF THE MILITIA. "It was a most orderly and quiet assemblage of determined men up to the time we left Seattle, and I only know of the after results by hearing the shooting when we were about two and a half miles down the Sound. I think that the action of the militia was most reprehensible. There could have been no occasion for such desperate action, for the crowd or mob, whichever you choose to call it, was not warned, and to fire noon an uncommed body. was not warned, and to fire upon an unarmed body of men was cowardly to say the least."

"How many Chinamen do you imagine are left in Seattle?" asked the reporter.

"I believe between 150 and 200. I was informed before I left that if it became impossible to crowd them all on board the Queen, that the balance would be despatched on the Geo. W. Elder, now on her way up the Sound."

Mr. Weisbach stated that his trip to Seattle and to this city was strictly to attend to private business and had no connection whetever with Chiness and had no connection whetever with Chiness.

THE SIX COMPANIES.

A Member of the Corporation Admits the Serious Aspect of Affairs.

An ALTA reporter called late last evening at the office of the Chinese Six Companies to make inquiries regarding the disposition that would be nade of the rapidly increasing surplus of unemployed Chinamen. A voluble member of that ocratic corporation was discovered who stated that the situation was becoming somewhat alarming.

"What do you intend doing with the 200 men sayttle?" asked the that arrived this evening from Seattle?" asked the reporter.

"I can't say what we will do. The white men "I can't say what we will do. The white men have no right to force our people to leave their tosiness in the manner they have done in Seattle. I understand that fully one half of the Chinamen of Seattle are now in this city. There are already large numbers here out of employment, half starved, and wandering the streets homeless. We have not decided yet what we will do, but in all probability we will be compelled to pay the passege of at least half the surplus back to China. We will wait awhile in the hope that this agitation will pass over. If we do decide to send men back we will first pick out the old and infirm men and send them."

The Chinaman seemed to maintain considerable the Chilaman seemed to maintain considerable hope that business in their line would brighten before long, and would not entertain the idea that it was possible that matters would probably grow much worse instead of improving.

Colonel F. A. Bee, the Chinese Consul, was seen last n'ght by an ALTA reporter, and asked what he had of news in regard to the Seattle affair and other matters. Colonel Bee replied that he had heard nothing new of interest beyond what had already been published. He detalled the scenes of the expulsion of the Chinese at Seattle with considerable warmth, saying that, as learned from those Chinese who arrived yesterday on the Queen of the Pacific, the mob at that place deliberately "looted" the houses and personal property of the Chinese and robbed them of nearly all they possessed. Colonel Bee was naturally very indignant over the affair. He declared his opinion that before many weeks there will be several thousand more Federal troops ordered into this department for protection of the Chinese. Col. Bee was at the wharf yesterday with a force of police when the Queen landed, as he feared that some kind of an attack might be made on the arriving men, but all was fortunately quiet. Col. Bee also says that no Chinese have been driven out of Truckee or any other interior town as yet, the Associated Press reports to the contrary notwithstanding. Why such reports should be sent he does not know. The 196 that arrived by the Queen siderable warmth, saying that, as learned from

The presence of the Federal troops has had a wonderfully quieting effect, and members of the militia and home guard, who have not for several days been able to go on the streets without hearing tannts and insults, now pass to and fro without being molested in any way.

A military commission was organized to-day for the trial of all offenders during the continuance of martial law. Many men have been arrested on the streets for seditious language, and the indications are that they will be severely dealt with. Among them is McMillan, who, from the first, has been the principal leader of the movement. General Gibbon is now in personal command in the city, and the rules and regulations for the government of citizens are most stringent.

Stewart, who died of wounds received in Monday's fight, will be buried to-day. It was intended to make an imposing demonstration at the foneral, but Gen. Gibbon has refused to allow any to attend but enough to give a decent burial.

Acting Chief of Police Murphy was suspended from duty to-day, and it is understood that the entire city police force will be dismissed as soon as civil law is restored. It is undecided how long martial law will be maintained. The officers and drawing up a code for the government of the city while under martial rule.

It is needless to say that their arrival created intendings the first police for the government of the city while under martial rule.

SEATTLE, W. T., February 11th.—The following general order was issued at a late hour this evening. Governor Squire requests that the press of the country give it wide publicity:

GENERAL ORDER NO. 12, MILITARY HEADQUARTERS, SEATTLE, W. T.

February 11, 1886

In time of riot and insurrection, it is the manifest duty of every citizen to assist in maintaining the dignity of the law. When solemn international treaties are concerned, it behooves every American to stand up for the sancity of our national honor. When the peace and safety of society cannot be preserved by the ordinary process of the law, then the strong arm of authorized military force must supervene to preserve order. Gentlemen of the Seattle Rifles, Company D, Home Guards of the city of Seattle, University Cadets and distinguished gentlemen of my staff, most nobly have you performed your duty in suppressing the mob violence inaugurated on Sunday last by the lawless element of your city in their interference with the rights of a people who are lawfully in our midst by reason of treaty stipulation with the country to which they belong. Not only the people of this Territory, but the people of the entire United States, have cause to thank you for the fearless and determined manner in which you defended your homes and the laws and treaties of your country. The confidence of the people of the Territory is secured in this, that her citizen soldlers are ever ready to uphold and maintain her dignity. The attention of the people of the nation is upon us, and by your action within the past five days our countrymen have another proof that the claim to self-government put forth in our petition for admission into the Union is a just one and demands consideration.

The Governor takes this occasion on behalf of the Territory to proof the thank you all as

Your readiness and ability to meet any emergency at a moment's notice will be relied upon. Gen. OVER THE ALPS INTO ITALY.

Dr. Spining's Lecture at the Calvary Church Last Night. The Rev. George L. Spining, D. D., held his udience with interest last evening, as he told of his spinning trip over the Alps through Italy to Naples, by the way of Milan, Verona, Venice and Rome. He carried his hearers with him, in a poetic, semi-humorous vein, from the time he mounted the diligence and garbled bad French at the conductor, up into the fastnesses of the Alpine Mountains, with their green vales and icy peaks, past the hospices of St. Bernard, the rough Chalets and skirting glaciers; told of Mont Blanc in the early morning light, star crowned and impressive, with awful grandeur; the wayside shrines, thence down upon the other side into Sunny Italy; stopping awhile at Lake Maginore, visiting the home of the Baromeos, then onward across the olive and fig groves to Milan; of the wonderful cathedral, with its ten thousand statues and dim, religious lights, its quiet, aweinspiring distances, the squalor of the people amid so much magnificence; then on to Verona, the home of Juliet; told of Venice, its past grandeur and present mildewy decay; of Rome, with her Vatican, St. Peter's and the ruined Coliseum; touched upon the ignorance and superstition of the results of the results and the sunty and the starters and the ruined coliseum; touched upon the ignorance and superstition of the people; told of Naples, with its grand pal-aces and the squalor of its streets and lazzaroni inhabitants.

There was a rhythm of poesy running through the lecture that was pleasing and attractive, es-pecially when dry facts introduced themselves, and the humorous stories that the Doctor told would put Mark Twain to shame. The one about the terrible Italian banditti, "bloodthirsty wretches," he called them, that turned out to be wretches," he called them, that turned out to be what are known in San Francisco as "fleas," brought a roar of laughter from his hearers. The imitations of an American endeavoring to speak the "lingo" of the country were very ludicrous. The Doctor is a very forcible speaker, well and favorably known in the East, and should be welcomed to the rostrum in California heartily, as he activity descript the descript of the country were very service to the country to the cou as he certainly deserves to be,

[Laughter and applause.] Were it not for the doings of this scoundrel in duping poor men by making them believe that he was going to ride a white horse through Chinatown and blow it up by flinging dynamite on each side as he galloped through, we too would be in a position to ship an instalment of these Chinese back to their cursed country across the sea, never to return. This paid hireling of the Chinese Six Companies distracted your attention and tried to bring this anti-Chinese uprising into ridicule and contempt.
